Uggie was a Jack Russell Terrier who starred in the Oscar-winning film The Artist. He was born in 2002 and was adopted from a shelter by Omar Von Muller in 2005. Von Muller was a dog trainer who had worked with animals in films and television for over 20 years.

Uggie quickly showed a talent for performing and soon began appearing in commercials and television shows. In 2011, he was cast in The Artist, a silent film about a Hollywood actor who falls on hard times. Uggie played the role of Jack, the actor's loyal dog. His performance in the film was widely praised, and he was even nominated for a Golden Globe Award.

The Artist was a huge success, and Uggie became an instant celebrity. He appeared on talk shows, magazines, and even walked the red carpet at the Oscars. He was also the subject of a children's book, Uggie: My Story.

Uggie retired from acting in 2012 and spent his remaining years with Von Muller and his family. He passed away in 2015 at the age of 13.
